

Report from aljazeera.com

Claude

Version 28, 2025

Table of Contents

1. Al Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake moment	1
2. Modi and Trump are on the same page on immigration	2
3. Ramadan in colour: How Muslims in Africa celebrate the holy month and Eid.	5
4. Died in ‘agony’: Coroners testify in trial against Maradona’s medical team	8
5. Sudan’s army takes full control of Khartoum, RSF remains defiant	10
6. What evidence does the US government need to deport green card holders?	12
7. US hits dozens of Houthi targets in Yemen	15
8. Bangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakes	17
9. Death toll rises to 28 in weeklong South Korea wildfires.	18
10. The many ways Israeli settlers steal Palestinian homes.	20

1. Al Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake moment

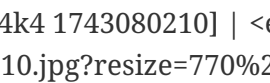

[image 1743157619] | </wp-content/uploads/2025/03/image-1743157619.jpg?resize=1800%2C1080&quality=80>

[image 1743150099] | </wp-content/uploads/2025/03/image-1743150099.jpg?resize=730%2C410&quality=80>

Al Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake moment | Earthquakes | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightToggle PlayAl Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake momentNewsFeedAl Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake momentAl Jazeera reporter Tony Cheng and his crew were filming in Myanmar when one of two powerful earthquakes hit.
Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025More from the same showBangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakesVideo Duration 00 minutes 30 secondsplay-arrow00:30Families say loved ones wrongly deported from US based on tattoosVideo Duration 02 minutes 15 secondsplay-arrow02:15US immigration officials detain Turkish student over pro-Palestine viewsVideo Duration 03 minutes 10 secondsplay-arrow03:10Video: New film delves into US college protests over Gaza genocideVideo Duration 01 minutes 59 secondsplay-arrow01:59Hawaii's Kilauea volcano launches lava fountains 180 metres highVideo Duration 00 minutes 31 secondsplay-arrow00:31Israeli air attack targets charity kitchen in GazaVideo Duration 00 minutes 49 secondsplay-arrow00:49Screenshots of Yemen attack group chat contradict US officials' denialsVideo Duration 02 minutes 21 secondsplay-arrow02:21AboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow moreContact UsUser Accounts HelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera English:facebook-f-darktwitteryoutube-whiteinstagram-whiterss-white© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

2. Modi and Trump are on the same page on immigration

[som] |

[doc 36x4k 1743080210] |

Modi and Trump are on the same page on immigration | Narendra Modi | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftDonald TrumpHow a Columbia student fled the USWhat did Trump aides leak to The Atlantic?Trump's new order could alter election rules: Here's howWho are the students Trump wants to deport?caret-rightOPINIONOPINION,Opinions| Narendra ModiModi and Trump are on the same page on immigrationThat the Indian prime minister is not willing to do much to help undocumented Indians in the US amid Trump's crackdown should not surprise anyone.Somdeep SenAssociate Professor of International Development Studies at Roskilde UniversityPublished On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025US President Donald Trump, right, appears with Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi during a joint news conference at the White House in Washington, DC, on February 13, 2025 [Jim Watson/AFP]In February, the airwaves in India were inundated with images of undocumented Indians shackled in chains on a military deportation flight from the United States. The shocking images made clear the devastating impact President Donald Trump's draconian crackdown on "illegal immigration" would have on the lives of thousands of vulnerable Indian citizens who had risked everything to make their way to America.Oppositionlawmakers, including Indian National Congress party leader Rahul Gandhi, wore handcuffs and protested the humiliating treatment of deportees outside the parliament in New Delhi. With all of this happening on the eve of Narendra Modi's visit to the White House, they demanded that the Indian prime minister take up this matter with the US president.But during his US news conference, Modi responded to questions about the deportations by stating that his Bharatiya Janata Party-led (BJP-led) government was "fully prepared to bring back illegal migrants". Headed: "The young, vulnerable and poor people of India are fooled into immigration. These are children of very ordinary families who are lured by big dreams and big promises. Many are brought in without knowing why they are being brought in – many brought in through a human-trafficking system."AdvertisementThis response was unusually meek and agreeable for the leader of a Hindu nationalist regime known for its muscular jingoism. It would seem Modi was simply trying to avoid a Volodymyr Zelenskyy-style bust-up with Trump, especially with negotiations ongoing regarding reciprocal tariffs. While this could be true, it is also important to remember that when it comes to immigration, Modi and Trump are on the same page.Like his American counterpart, Modi relies on grand visions and claims about the nation. This includes the BJP government's bombastic declarations about the economic health of India.At the moment, theIndian economyis facing a troubling slowdown, but there also is a longer term, much more entrenched problem:inequality. In the world's most populous country, the top 1 percent holds 40.1 percent of the national wealth. By the end of 2024, India had 191billionaires, putting it in third place in the world after the US and China. Meanwhile, itaccounted for70 percent of the global increase in extreme poverty. India is also the country with thelargest population(234 million people) living in extreme poverty. Undocumented Indian migrants in the US are manifestations of this dark reality. The estimates regarding their exact number vary. The Pew Research Center estimated that there were 700,000 undocumented Indian immigrants in the US at the end of 2022, making Indians the third largest national group of undocumented people after Mexicans and Salvadorians. The Department of Homeland Security estimated there are 220,000 undocumented Indian migrants in the country. Advertisement Irrespective of the exact size of the population, this cohort of undocumented people contradicts the rosy image of an economic powerhouse under Hindu nationalist leadership. This is why Modi is so eager to shut down this saga of “illegal immigration” as quickly and calmly as possible. He does not want any skirmish with Trump over the treatment of undocumented migrants to grab headlines and expose the cracks in the aura of a rising India. But in a Hindu nationalist India, a Trump-like anti-immigration discourse is also not an oddity. For a few years, the Indian right has been ritually raising the issue of a supposed scourge of undocumented migration, especially from Bangladesh. In 2016, then-Minister of State of Home Affairs Kiren Rijiju claimed there were about “20 million illegal immigrants from Bangladesh in India”. In 2018, Home Minister Amit Shah said there were more than 40 million undocumented immigrants in the country. In 2023, right-wing politicians have also claimed there are now close to 50 million undocumented migrants in India. There is no real evidence to back up these numbers. Yet for the Hindu nationalists in India, these claims about the presence of an insidious, Muslim undocumented population evoke a powerful image and fit well into an Islamophobic discourse of a Hindu nation facing an existential threat from its neighbours. Unsubstantiated claims about the threat of “illegal immigration” from Bangladesh allow right-wing politicians in India to blame the undocumented “outsider” for the plight of the country’s economically disadvantaged. As Shah once said: “They [Bangladeshi immigrants] are eating the grain that should go to the poor.” Elsewhere, Shah has called undocumented migrants “termites” and “infiltrators” who needed to be uprooted. While on the campaign trail in 2019, Shah also promised that the BJP government would “pick up infiltrators one by one and throw them into the Bay of Bengal”. Advertisement These unsubstantiated claims also allow Hindu nationalists to stoke fears about a demographic challenge to a Hindu nation. For instance, during a TV interview, the leader of the Delhi unit of the BJP, Ashwini Upadhyay, insinuated that the majority status of the Hindu population was under threat. He said that India was established as a “Hindu nation” and this identity was being diluted by “illegals”, “[Muslim] Rohingyas” and “[Muslim] converts”. Similarly, Vice President Jagdeep Dhankhar claimed that “illegal migration” was causing a “demographic upheaval”. He noted that this cohort was putting undue stress on the country’s health and education sectors, depriving citizens of employment opportunities, and was undermining democracy by gaining “electoral relevance”. He also warned that if left unchecked, the Hindu ethnic identity would be undermined by such “demographic invasions”. Finally, it is equally commonplace to hear from the right in India that “illegal migration” is synonymous with criminality. In a statement to the lower house of the Indian parliament, Minister of External Affairs S Jaishankar said: “Illegal mobility and migration has many other associated activities, also of an illegal nature.” While Jaishankar here was referring to undocumented Indian migrants in the US, in India, authorities have similarly claimed that there is a “well-oiled” criminal network that helps undocumented migrants gain residency, employment, fake birth certificates and eventually voting rights. This has led to Trump-like police raids and deportation drives targeting Bangladeshis and Rohingya. Advertisement Often caught up in these raids are Bengali-speaking Muslim citizens of India. A few years ago, a study revealed there were more Bangladeshi migrants leaving than entering the country. But in the era of the rise of the right, none of this matters. Be it in Trump’s US or Modi’s India, it is always the insidious outsider blamed for troubles within the country. It is this mentality that drives the anti-immigration waves in both India and the US. In India, it provided the rationale for legal manoeuvres like the Citizenship

Amendment Act of 2019, which excluded Muslims from neighbouring countries from gaining Indian citizenship. Modi may be the prime minister of a Hindu nationalist government, but he won't risk damaging his relationship with Trump in the name of protecting undocumented Indians in the US. On immigration, his views are identical to Trump's, and he feels nothing but contempt for undocumented people, even when they happen to be Indian citizens. The views expressed in this article are the author's own and do not necessarily reflect Al Jazeera's editorial stance.

aj-logoaj-logoSponsored ContentAdvertisementAboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow moreContact UsUser AccountsHelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera Englishfacebooktwitteryoutubeinstagramcolored-outlinesrss© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

3. Ramadan in colour: How Muslims in Africa celebrate the holy month and Eid

[2024 04 11T142749Z 414429593 RC2847A8KKI7 RTRMADP 3 RELIGION EID SAFRICA 1743078420] |
/wp-content/uploads/2025/03/2024-04-11T142749Z_414429593_RC2847A8KKI7_RTRMADP_3_RELIGION-EID-SAFRICA-1743078420.jpg?resize=1920%2C1080&quality=80

[2024 04 11T142749Z 414429593 RC2847A8KKI7 RTRMADP 3 RELIGION EID SAFRICA 1743078420] |
/wp-content/uploads/2025/03/2024-04-11T142749Z_414429593_RC2847A8KKI7_RTRMADP_3_RELIGION-EID-SAFRICA-1743078420.jpg?resize=820%2C1460&quality=80

Ramadan in colour: How Muslims in Africa celebrate the holy month and Eid | Arts and Culture | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upRamadan in colour for Muslims in AfricaHorseback parades, moon-sighting ceremonies and traffic jam coffee during the holy month and Eid-al-Fitr.A boy at an Eid prayer in Cape Town, South Africa [Esa Alexander/Reuters]A boy at an Eid prayer in Cape Town, South Africa [Esa Alexander/Reuters]ByShola LawalPublished On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025facebooktwitterwhatsappcopylinkEvery year across the Islamic world, there is one month when the rhythms of time seem to change: Ramadan.Patience and generosity overtake the hustle and bustle. The usually frenetic daytime streets quieten down, and nights come alive with prayer, food and festivity that extend until dawn.Around the world, rituals of the holy fasting month have embedded themselves in other communities too - not least in Africa, where some 40 percent of the more than 1 billion people identify as Muslim.Islam first spread from the Middle East to the African continent in the seventh century during the time of the Prophet Muhammad. About 1,400 years later, it is a majority religion across North Africa as well as in Chad, The Gambia, Senegal, Somalia and Sudan.For Muslims across the continent, Ramadan and the end-of-the-month festival of Eid al-Fitr are a combination of religious practices and cultural rituals around food and community.In Senegal, Nigeria and South Africa, three photographers documenting their communities share snapshots of the month with Al Jazeera.Huge crowds in Kano, Nigeria, attend a Durbar in 2024, marking the end of Ramadan [Muhammad Sani Sabo/Al Jazeera]Huge crowds in Kano, Nigeria, attend a Durbar in 2024, marking the end of Ramadan [Muhammad Sani Sabo/Al Jazeera]Nigeria: Spirituality and horseback paradesNigeria, Africa's most populous country, is also home to the continent's largest number of Muslims.The mainly Muslim northern regions are home to a range of ethnic groups, chief among them the Hausas and Fulanis. In the past decade, the north has become synonymous with instability and violence amid conflict with bandits and armed groups like Boko Haram.But for those who live there, the region is a bastion of colourful cultural practices.During Ramadan, bustling cities in the north slow down as most people stay indoors to avoid the heat and focus on spiritual activities like attending lectures or reading the Quran.And every year, typically to mark Eid, there is a Durbar festival.Durbars are cultural, religious and equestrian events that have been popular among Hausas for centuries. One of the largest taking place today is the Kano City Durbar, which sees hundreds of thousands of people decked out in stylish Eid attire turning up to get a view of the emir – the equivalent of a king

- often on horseback. Kano-based photographer Muhammad Sani Sabo has been documenting Durbars since 2014. He also photographs everyday scenes in his city. The 31-year-old says he hopes to paint a more accurate representation of the north, which is more than a poster child for poverty, illiteracy and conflict. "There's more stories to tell about the north," Sabo tells Al Jazeera. "I know all the stories, and I believe I can tell it better than anyone coming from Lagos or from abroad." [Muhammad Sani Sabo/Al Jazeera]

In the city of Kano, women and girls attend a Ramadan gathering in 2023. During the holy Muslim month, the city sees lectures and gatherings where people learn from an imam or spiritual guide. Study of the Quran is common across the city. Food or gifts are sometimes shared by companies or individuals to emphasise the spirit of generosity and sharing. [Muhammad Sani Sabo/Al Jazeera]

The 15th emir of Kano, Ado Bayero, rides a horse during the 2024 Durbar festival. Hausas are renowned for being warriors with excellent horsemanship skills. Durbar culture stemmed from military parades in ancient days that signalled readiness for war. Today's Durbar festivals highlight that heritage while also celebrating the end of Ramadan. After the morning prayers, the colourful horseback procession begins, with the emir leading his convoy of warriors, artillerymen and praise singers. [Muhammad Sani Sabo/Al Jazeera]

A family in Kano waits to see the Durbar procession outside the emir's palace in April 2024. Eid - or the Sallah festival in the Hausa language - is not complete without stylish, new traditional attire and, of course, a peek at the emir's glamorous entourage. A man reads the Quran in a mosque in Senegal [Hawo Kane/Al Jazeera]

A man reads the Quran in a mosque in Senegal [Hawo Kane/Al Jazeera]

Senegal: Teraanga, the culture of hospitality In the West African Francophone country of Senegal, Islam is a way of life. Nearly all of the population - 97 percent - is Muslim. With long, breezy coastlines, Senegal is known for its culture of "Teraanga", a Wolof word that loosely translates to generosity, hospitality and sharing. Many locals say that just asking a passer-by for directions to the nearest restaurant could get you an invitation to a private family dinner instead. During Ramadan, Hawo Kane says cities slow down, and the culture of Teraanga and giving only intensifies. Kane, 34, a Senegalese photographer who grew up in France and Mauritania, documents communities in the capital, Dakar, and other cities. While her family moved around for work, settling back in her home country as an adult "was always the logical option" because of her goal to authentically document its rich traditions. Her photographs of Ramadan and Eid show a community in which no one is left behind. "No one is going to go hungry here because everyone has something to share," Kane says. [Hawo Kane/Al Jazeera]

In many neighbourhoods in Senegal, young people gather to prepare meals for breaking the fast, known globally as iftar but called "ndogou" in Wolof. Meals are carefully prepared and packed for distribution to passers-by and the needy. Sharing ndogou in Senegal is both a religious and social duty that strengthens community bonds. Solidarity takes on its full meaning during Ramadan, and no one is allowed to break their fast alone. [Hawo Kane/Al Jazeera]

Just minutes before breaking the fast, the streets of Dakar come alive with generosity. Local young people hand out bread with sausages or chocolate in it and hot "Touba coffee". They offer these to passers-by and drivers stuck in traffic jams, which the city always experiences during Ramadan. [Hawo Kane/Al Jazeera]

Excitement often fills salons before Eid as women wait for hours, many to get their hair braided. Young people hope to look their best for festivities, also known as Korite in Senegal. Elegant hairstyles and new outfits are essential preparations for the festival. Muslims look at the crescent moon that marks the start of Ramadan in Cape Town, South Africa [Esa Alexander/Reuters]

Muslims look at the crescent moon before Ramadan in Cape Town [Esa Alexander/Reuters]

South Africa: Moon sightings and street iftars At the southern tip of Africa, South Africa has a tiny population of Muslims - a mere 2 percent of the country. But they are a visible minority, especially in Cape Town, where the earliest Muslims arrived in the 1600s from countries that include Indonesia and Malaysia. Many South African Muslims can trace their ancestry back to enslaved people and indentured labourers who were brought to the continent by Western colonisers. When they arrived, they brought rituals with them, including the longstanding tradition of physically sighting the crescent moon before the start of Ramadan and Eid. In Cape Town, this is a community affair that takes place near Bo-Kaap, a historically Muslim neighbourhood known for its colourful houses. Esa Alexander, a Reuters photographer from Cape Town, says Ramadan is a special time in his city. Although some parts like the Cape Flats area, which Alexander hails from, are known for high levels of crime and poverty, things calm down during the fasting month, he says. "It's like people just stop with criminality, and you can feel the calm in the air," Alexander tells Al Jazeera. "It brings people together. For example, we have so many street iftars and so many NGOs and other organisations coming into our communities, giving out food parcels and food to the less fortunate." [Esa Alexander/Reuters] South Africa remains one of the most unequal countries in the world due in large part to its apartheid history. In Heideveld on the Cape Flats in Cape Town, poverty and crime are a challenge. During Ramadan, people often gather together at long, makeshift tables for iftar or find other ways to share what they have. [Esa Alexander/Reuters] Volunteers from Cape Townian NGO Nakhlistan help prepare more than 180 pots of food for less fortunate families to celebrate the end of Ramadan and Eid al-Fitr. In communities across the city and the country, the holy month is a time of increased giving. [Esa Alexander/Reuters] Bo-Kaap is a neighbourhood known for its colourful houses and welcoming community. The area in Cape Town was historically Muslim under apartheid, and the sense of community there is still strong. Hundreds of Muslims gather in the streets to attend Eid al-Fitr prayers marking the end of the month of Ramadan, as they did here in 2024. Source: Al Jazeera

About Show more About Us Code of Ethics Terms and Conditions EU/EEA Regulatory Notice Privacy Policy Cookie Policy Cookie Preferences Sitemap Work for us Connect Show more Contact Us User Accounts Help Advertise with us Stay Connected Newsletters Channel Finder TV Schedule Podcasts Submit a Tip Our Channels Show more Al Jazeera Arabic Al Jazeera English Al Jazeera Investigative Unit Al Jazeera Mubasher Al Jazeera Documentary Al Jazeera Balkans AJ+Our Network Show more Al Jazeera Centre for Studies Al Jazeera Media Institute Learn Arabic Al Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human Rights Al Jazeera Forum Al Jazeera Hotel Partners Follow Al Jazeera English: facebook twitter youtube instagram colored-outliner rss © 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

4. Died in ‘agony’: Coroners testify in trial against Maradona’s medical team

[000 8UG6JY] | /wp-

content/uploads/2020/11/000_8UG6JY.jpg?resize=770%2C513&quality=80

[aj footer logo.bac952ad] | /static/media/aj-footer-logo.bac952ad.svg

Died in ‘agony’: Coroners testify in trial against Maradona’s medical team | Football News | Al Jazeera

Skip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightNews|FootballDied in ‘agony’: Coroners testify in trial against Maradona’s medical teamA forensic expert says the football legend’s seven doctors and nurses made deadly mistakes that ‘any doctor’ would notice.A supporter of Argentinian former football star Diego Maradona poses for a picture outside the Ipena clinic where Maradona was admitted before having successful brain surgery, in La Plata, Buenos Aires province, Argentina[\[File: Juan Mabromata/AFP\]](#)Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025One of two forensic experts who performed Diego Maradona’s autopsy has told a court in Buenos Aires that the Argentinian football legend suffered “agony” for at least 12 hours before he died.The results of the autopsy were made public for the first time on Thursday amid the trial of seven doctors and nurses who treated him at his Buenos Aires home before his death in 2020.The trial started on Tuesday.Recommended Storieslist of 4 itemslist 1 of 4Trial to begin for Maradona’s medical staff accused in footballer’s deathlist 2 of 4Diego Maradona’s medical staff go on trial for negligent homicidellist 3 of 4Injuries, arrests in Argentina as football fans, retirees clash with policelist 4 of 4Photos: Football diehards and Argentinian retirees protest pension reformend of list“The heart was completely covered in fat and blood clots, which indicate agony,” Carlos Cassinelli, director of forensic medicine at the Scientific Police Superintendency, told the court.The autopsy concluded that Maradona died from acute pulmonary oedema secondary to congestive heart failure.He was not a patient who should have been treated at home, Cassinelli added.“This is a patient who had been collecting water over the days; that’s not acute. This was something that was foreseeable,” he said.“Any doctor examining a patient would find this.”According to the prosecution, the accused professionals – a neurosurgeon, a psychiatrist, a psychologist, doctors, and nurses – who were caring for Maradona during his convalescence, failed to provide adequate medical care, which allegedly led to his death.AdvertisementDuring the investigation, several witnesses testified that they noticed Maradona’s face and abdomen were excessively swollen.Among those on trial are Leopoldo Luque, Maradona’s personal physician for the last four years of his life, and psychiatrist Agustina Cosachov, who prescribed medication that Maradona took until the time of his death.The defendants in the case are accused of “homicide with possible intent” – pursuing a course of action despite knowing it can lead to their patient’s death.The medics risk prison terms of between eight and 25 years.The footballing legend died at the age of 60 in a private residential complex north of Buenos Aires.He had undergone brain surgery a few weeks earlier.Investigators say serious mistakes were made in the home care of the 1986 World Cup winner, whose health was severely compromised.Nearly 120 witnesses are expected to testify in the long-delayed trial anticipated to run until July.Source:Al Jazeera and news agenciesaj-logoaj-logoaj-logoSponsored

ContentAdvertisementAboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow moreContact UsUser AccountsHelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera English:facebooktwitteryoutubeinstagramcolored-outlinerrss© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

5. Sudan's army takes full control of Khartoum, RSF remains defiant

[AP25085733336699 1743075401] | </wp-content/uploads/2025/03/AP25085733336699-1743075401.jpg?resize=770%2C513&quality=80>

[aj footer logo.bac952ad] | </static/media/aj-footer-logo.bac952ad.svg>

Sudan's army takes full control of Khartoum, RSF remains defiant | News | Al Jazeera

Skip links
to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightNewsSudan's army takes full control of Khartoum, RSF remains defiantThe military declares victory in Khartoum, retaking key positions after months of intense battles against the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces.Sudan's military chief Abdel Fattah al-Burhan, centre, is greeted by soldiers as he arrives at the Republican Palace, recently recaptured from the Rapid Support Forces paramilitary group, in Khartoum, Sudan, Wednesday, March 26, 2025 [AP Photo]Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025The Sudanese army has claimed to have cleared Rapid Support Forces (RSF) fighters from the capital Khartoum, nearly two years after losing the capital to the paramilitary group. "Our forces today have ... forcibly cleansed the last pockets of the remnants of the Daglo terrorist militia in Khartoum locality," military spokesman Nabil Abdullah said in a statement late on Thursday, using the government's term for the RSF, led by Mohamed Hamdan Daglo, which have been battling the military since April 2023.

Recommended Stories

- list of 3 items
- list 1 of 3
- Soldiers celebrate as Sudan's army recaptures presidential palace
- list 2 of 3
- At least five killed in RSF shelling in Sudan's Khartoum: Lawyers' group
- list 3 of 3
- Would retaking Khartoum be a turning point for Sudan's government?

end of list

The announcement came after army chief Abdel Fattah al-Burhan on Wednesday declared the capital "free" from the RSF while standing inside the newly reclaimed presidential palace. The army, after suffering a string of defeats for a year and a half, launched a counteroffensive that steadily pushed through central Sudan towards the capital. Al Jazeera's Hiba Morgan, reporting from Khartoum, said the army was able to take full control of the city after retaking its southern Jebel Awliya area.

Advertisement

"That is where Jebel Awliya Bridge lies, and it's from there the RSF fighters have been escaping the capital ... going westwards towards Darfur," she said. With the army now taking control of Khartoum city and Jebel Awliya, Morgan said RSF fighters have "nowhere to go" and do not have the means to resupply themselves to fight the Sudanese armed forces. According to army sources who spoke to Al Jazeera, there were still areas in Khartoum where RSF fighters were "holed up" in residential buildings, unable to leave because they were afraid of being captured, Morgan added. However, the RSF pledged there would be "no retreat and no surrender", saying its forces had only repositioned. "We will deliver crushing defeats to the enemy on all fronts," it said in a statement, its first direct comment since the army's offensive began in Khartoum this week.

Blue Nile battle

Hours after al-Burhan walked back into the presidential palace for the first time in two years, the RSF announced a "military alliance" with a rebel group controlling large swaths of South Kordofan and parts of Blue Nile state near the Ethiopian border. The Sudan People's Liberation Movement-North, led by Abdelaziz al-Hilu, had clashed with both sides before signing a political charter with the RSF last month to establish a rival government. On Thursday evening, witnesses in the Blue Nile state capital Damazin reported that both its airport and the nearby Roseires Dam came under drone attack by the paramilitaries and their allies for the first time in the war. Advertisement The army's 4th Infantry Division in Damazin said in a statement on Friday that its air defences intercepted the drones. The war has killed tens of thousands, displaced more than 12 million and created the "biggest humanitarian crisis ever recorded", according to the International Rescue Committee. It has also split Africa's third-largest country in two, with the army holding the north and east, and the RSF controlling parts of the south and nearly all of the vast western region of Darfur. Source: Al Jazeera and news agencies    Sponsored Content Advertisement About Show more About Us Code of Ethics Terms and Conditions EU/EEA Regulatory Notice Privacy Policy Cookie Policy Cookie Preferences Sitemap Work for us Connect Show more Contact Us User Accounts Help Advertise with us Stay Connected Newsletters Channel Finder TV Schedule Podcasts Submit a Tip Our Channels Show more Al Jazeera Arabic Al Jazeera English Al Jazeera Investigative Unit Al Jazeera Mubasher Al Jazeera Documentary Al Jazeera Balkans AJ+ Our Network Show more Al Jazeera Centre for Studies Al Jazeera Media Institute Learn Arabic Al Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human Rights Al Jazeera Forum Al Jazeera Hotel Partners Follow Al Jazeera English: facebook twitter youtube instagram-colored-outliners  © 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

6. What evidence does the US government need to deport green card holders?

[AP25083467506511 1742859092] | wp-content/uploads/2025/03/AP25083467506511-1742859092.jpg?resize=770%2C513&quality=80

[aj footer logo.bac952ad] | /static/media/aj-footer-logo.bac952ad.svg

What evidence does the US government need to deport green card holders? | Government News | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftDonald TrumpHow a Columbia student fled the USWhat did Trump aides leak to The Atlantic?Trump's new order could alter election rules: Here's howWho are the students Trump wants to deport?caret-rightEXPLAINERNews|GovernmentWhat evidence does the US government need to deport green card holders?Legal residents and visa holders face deportation risks, prompting concerns about the Trump administration's adherence.Protesters rally outside the Rhode Island State House in support of deported Brown University doctor Rasha Alawieh, March 17, 2025, in Providence, Rhode Island [Charles Krupa/AP Photo]ByMaria Ramirez Uribe | PolitifactPublished On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025A Columbia University activist with a green card, a Georgetown University academic with a student visa, a Brown University kidney transplant specialist with a work visa: They are among the people who, despite having legal permission to be in the US, have recently been detained by immigration authorities or denied entry to the US at airports.President Donald Trump has said he supports legal immigration, and administration officials have given assurances that Trump's campaign promise of mass deportations would focus on people who have committed violent crimes. But some of the highest-profile examples of attempted deportations are people who have legal permission to be in the US.Recommended Storieslist of 4 itemslist 1 of 4What is Betar US, the group pushing to deport pro-Palestinian students?list 2 of 4Turkish student at Tufts arrested by masked ICE agentslist 3 of 4'Columbia let me down': How Indian scholar expelled by Trump fled the USlist 4 of 4Who are the students Trump wants to deport?end of listImmigration experts said people with visas and green cards have been deported under other administrations, but some of the Trump administration's actions have been unprecedented."The Trump administration has jettisoned typical guidelines and procedures and is looking for arcane passages of immigration law to ensure that it can remove anyone it desires, ideally with limited or no due process," Matthew Boaz, a University of Kentucky immigration law professor, said.AdvertisementColumbia University graduate and pro-Palestinian activistMahmoud Khalilwas detained by immigration authorities, who said he could be deported and cited a Cold War-era law. Under that law, the secretary of state can make a noncitizen subject to deportation if their presence or activities could threaten US foreign policy interests. The government has not yet provided evidence for how Khalil has threatened US foreign policy.Immigration authorities have cited the same Cold War-era law while seeking to deport anotherColumbia University studentinvolved in the pro-Palestine movement. A federal judge temporarilyblockedthe student's detention and deportation.What evidence do government officials need in these cases, and what are people's rights?Immigration experts said the government must show proof to deport a green card or visa holder, but the process can be lengthy. For example, Khalil was arrested on March 8 and has been held in an ICE detention facility in Louisiana as his case proceeds. His lawyers say the detention is unlawful and are trying to transfer the case to New Jersey. For visa holders at US borders or airports, customs officials can choose to deny people entry without evidence. What are a few reasons a legal permanent resident could be deported? People with lawful permanent residence, or a green card, can be deported from the US. But they first have the right to plead their case in court. Only an immigration judge has the power to revoke a green card.

Advertisement There are several reasons green card holders may be eligible for deportation, including criminal convictions such as rape, murder or drug trafficking. The government can also deport permanent residents if they commit immigration fraud. After Khalil had been held in ICE custody for about two weeks, immigration authorities updated his charging documents, accusing him of fraud in his 2024 green card application. The government says Khalil failed to disclose his time working with UNRWA, the United Nations agency for Palestine refugees, and other international groups. Before the government amended Khalil's charging document, advocacy groups accused the Trump administration of violating Khalil's right to free speech. After his arrest, Khalil's lawyers filed a petition alleging that ICE had arrested and detained Khalil "on the basis of his speech" in a violation of the First Amendment, the American Civil Liberties Union wrote.

Drug-related convictions can also be cause for deportation. Fabian Schmidt, a German engineer and green card holder, was detained after flying back to the US on March 7. Schmidt had a decade-old misdemeanour drug and DUI charge, NPR reported. Another green card holder, Ma Yang, who has lived in the US since she was eight months old, was deported to Laos in the first week of March after pleading guilty to and serving a sentence for being part of a marijuana trafficking operation, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported.

What evidence does the government have to provide to deport a lawful permanent resident? The US government must first serve a green card holder with a notice to appear, which is a charging document for immigration cases. In it, the government lists the reasons it believes the person is deportable, Jaclyn Kelley-Widmer, Cornell University immigration law professor, said.

Advertisement Once someone receives a charging document, an immigration court case is initiated. In court, the US government has the burden of proof and must show through "clear and convincing evidence" – more likely to be true than untrue – that the person can be deported. The evidence that government lawyers must provide depends on the case. For example, lawyers can use proof of a criminal conviction to show that someone has been convicted of an aggravated felony. Or lawyers could show tax filings to prove someone filed taxes as a nonresident and therefore has abandoned lawful permanent status.

What is the deportation process for people with tourist, student or work visas? Like legal permanent residents, people with tourist, student or work visas who are already in the US are also given notices to appear if the government believes they are deportable. Visa holders can be deported for reasons including crime and fraud, if they overstay their visa or if they work without authorisation. Visa holders are afforded the same due process as legal permanent residents, and the government has the burden of proof.

Immigration authorities detained Badar Khan Suri, a graduate student teaching at Georgetown University on a student visa. Suri's visa has been revoked using the same authority cited in Khalil's case – that his presence or activities could threaten US foreign policy interests – Politico reported. He is awaiting immigration proceedings.

Visa holders can also be denied entry at an airport or US border, because a visa itself does not grant US entry. Customs and Border Protection officers have the authority to admit people or deny entry. They might deny entry if visa holders have a past criminal conviction, are at risk of overstaying their visas or might be coming to the US to work without authorisation.

Advertisement For example, in late January, a German tourist who is a tattoo artist was denied after border officials assumed she would illegally work in the US because she was carrying tattoo equipment, The Guardian reported.

Is the Trump administration following the process? Immigration law experts had differing opinions about whether the Trump administration has followed the legal processes to deport legal permanent residents or visa holders in the US. “My understanding is, as of right now, they’re following the process,” Boaz, the immigration law professor, said, citing the fact that people have received charging documents and are awaiting court cases. “What’s different is the manner in which it’s being done.” Boaz said typically people know what type of conduct “would make them a target for removal”, such as not having legal status or having a criminal conviction. That’s not the case under Trump’s administration, as people without criminal convictions and with legal status have been targeted. Other experts said the administration has deviated from the law. “Even if the law protects someone from deportation, there is no guarantee today that ICE will abide by the law,” Rebecca Sharpless, University of Miami’s immigration clinic director, said. “People should make choices about things like travel with this reality in mind.” Immigration agents who arrested Khalil outside his home initially said his student visa had been revoked, although he did not have a student visa, according to the petition filed by Khalil’s lawyers. After Khalil’s wife showed agents that Khalil has a green card, the agents said that was also being revoked. Advertisement However, immigration agents can’t revoke legal permanent status; only immigration judges can, after a court proceeding. “It later came to light that the Department of Homeland Security was charging Mr Khalil” under the Cold War-era provision, the petition said. The Trump administration also turned away a Brown University doctor at an airport despite a court order preventing it. Rasha Alawieh, a kidney transplant specialist with a US work visa, was denied entry at an airport after border officials said they found photos of Hezbollah members on her phone, CBS News reported. Immigration officers said they had not received a judge’s order until after Alawieh had been deported, CNN reported. The French government said one of its citizens, a scientist, had been denied entry to the US because his phone had messages where he “expressed his ‘personal opinion’ on the Trump administration’s science policies”, Philippe Baptiste, France’s minister for higher education and research, told The New York Times. “There’s only specific grounds by which somebody can be refused admission to the United States, and disagreeing with Trump, typically, isn’t one of them,” David Leopold, an immigration lawyer and former president of the American Immigration Lawyers Association, said. What rights do immigrants have when interacting with immigration officials? People already in the US are protected by the US Constitution. An immigration agent cannot enter people’s homes unless they have a warrant signed by a judge, immigration law experts said. Often, immigration officials have administrative warrants signed by an Immigration and Customs Enforcement officer; those do not carry the same legal weight as a judicial warrant. Advertisement To obtain a judicial warrant, immigration officials must “present evidence of a crime to a judge”, Kelley-Widmer said. At airports, people’s rights vary. Every traveller is subject to customs officers’ questions about their identity and immigration status. US citizens and green card holders cannot be denied entry to the US, the American Civil Liberties Union wrote. But green card holders can be detained if officers suspect they are deportable. Visa holders can be denied entry if they refuse to answer questions. Source: Al Jazeera aaj-logo aj-logo aj-logo Sponsored Content Advertisement About Show more About Us Code of Ethics Terms and Conditions EU/EEA Regulatory Notice Privacy Policy Cookie Policy Cookie Preferences Sitemap Work for us Connect Show more Contact Us User Accounts Help Advertise with us Stay Connected Newsletters Channel Finder TV Schedule Podcasts Submit a Tip Our Channels Show more Al Jazeera Arabic Al Jazeera English Al Jazeera Investigative Unit Al Jazeera Mubasher Al Jazeera Documentary Al Jazeera Balkans AJ+ Our Network Show more Al Jazeera Centre for Studies Al Jazeera Media Institute Learn Arabic Al Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human Rights Al Jazeera Forum Al Jazeera Hotel Partners Follow Al Jazeera English: facebook twitter youtube instagram-colored-outliner ss © 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

7. US hits dozens of Houthi targets in Yemen

[AP25079284251655 1742573911] | /wp-content/uploads/2025/03/AP25079284251655-1742573911.jpg?resize=770%2C513&quality=80

[aj footer logo.bac952ad] | /static/media/aj-footer-logo.bac952ad.svg

US hits dozens of Houthi targets in Yemen | Houthis News | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightNews | HouthisUS hits dozens of Houthi targets in YemenUS air strikes hit more than 40 locations across Yemen, including in Sanaa with at least seven people injured.Security personnel inspect a site reportedly struck by US air attacks overnight in Sanaa, Yemen [File: AP Photo]Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025United States air strikes have hit more than 40 locations across Houthi-controlled parts of Yemen, including in the capital, Sanaa, according to local media affiliated with the rebel group.Multiple residential homes and shops were damaged in the US attacks before dawn on Friday in the provinces of Saada, Marib, al-Jawf and Hodeidah, reported the Houthi-linked Al Masirah broadcaster.Recommended Storieslist of 3 itemslist 1 of 3Trump warns Iran will be ‘held responsible’ for Houthi attacks from Yemenlist 2 of 3The Take: What’s next after US strikes on Yemen?list 3 of 3Why is the US bombing Yemen?end of listOther targets included the Sanaa International Airport, which is used for both civilian and military traffic, and mountainous terrain north of Sanaa in Amran, where military camps and other installations are believed to be.At least seven people were injured across the country in the US strikes, including at least one in Sanaa, Al Masirah reported. It also said that communication networks went down after the attacks.The US military’s Central Command (CENTCOM), which now has authority from the White House to strike offensively in Yemen without pre-approval, did not immediately acknowledge conducting any raids.AdvertisementThe new campaign of air strikes, which the Houthis say has killed at least 57 people, started after the rebels threatened to restart targeting ships in the Red Sea overIsrael blocking aidentering the Gaza Strip for almost a month.War ‘must be avoided’The United Nations Special Envoy to Yemen Hans Grundberg late on Thursday emphasised the urgent need for peace after a decade of conflict in the war-torn nation, asserting that stability is critical not only for Yemen but for the entire region.“The resumption of a full-scale war in Yemen is not in anyone’s interest and must be avoided,” he said during a visit to Brussels, his office quoted him saying in a post on X.Grundberg noted that diplomacy was key to de-escalation, calling for dialogue and mutual commitment among all parties.“It is essential that the international community continues to take unified action to ensure a peaceful and sustainable solution for the Yemeni people,” he added.The Iran-aligned Houthis have launched more than 100 attacks targeting ships in the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden since November 2023, following Israel’s war on Gaza that began in October that year, saying the raids were in solidarity with Palestinians in the enclave.During that period, the fighters sank two vessels, seized another, and killed at least four seafarers in an offensive that disrupted global shipping, forcing firms to reroute to longer and more expensive journeys around Southern Africa.TheHouthisalso launched dozens of missile and drone attacks on Israel, killing at least one person and causing damage to buildings, including a school in Tel Aviv.AdvertisementSource:Al Jazeera and news agenciesaj-logoaj-logoaj-logoSponsored

ContentAdvertisementAboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow moreContact UsUser AccountsHelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera English:facebooktwitteryoutubeinstagramcolored-outlinerrss© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

8. Bangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakes

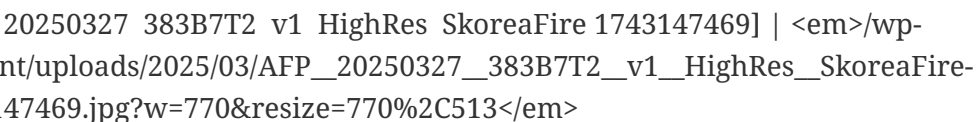

[image 1743150099] | </wp-content/uploads/2025/03/image-1743150099.jpg?resize=1800%2C1080&quality=80>

[image 1743157619] | </wp-content/uploads/2025/03/image-1743157619.jpg?resize=730%2C410&quality=80>

Bangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakes | Earthquakes | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightToggle PlayBangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakesNewsFeedBangkok skyscraper collapses after Myanmar earthquakesThere are fears for dozens of workers after a tower under construction collapsed in Bangkok due to two powerful earthquakes in neighbouring Myanmar.
Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025More from the same showAl Jazeera team captures Myanmar quake momentVideo Duration 00 minutes 59 secondsplay-arrow00:59Families say loved ones wrongly deported from US based on tattoosVideo Duration 02 minutes 15 secondsplay-arrow02:15US immigration officials detain Turkish student over pro-Palestine viewsVideo Duration 03 minutes 10 secondsplay-arrow03:10Video: New film delves into US college protests over Gaza genocideVideo Duration 01 minutes 59 secondsplay-arrow01:59Hawaii's Kilauea volcano launches lava fountains 180 metres highVideo Duration 00 minutes 31 secondsplay-arrow00:31Israeli air attack targets charity kitchen in GazaVideo Duration 00 minutes 49 secondsplay-arrow00:49Screenshots of Yemen attack group chat contradict US officials' denialsVideo Duration 02 minutes 21 secondsplay-arrow02:21AboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow moreContact UsUser Accounts HelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera English:facebook-f-darktwitteryoutube-whiteinstagram-whiterss-white© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

9. Death toll rises to 28 in weeklong South Korea wildfires

[12921126 1742954840] |

[AFP 20250327 383B7T2 v1 HighRes SkoreaFire 1743147469] |

Death toll rises to 28 in weeklong South Korea wildfires | Environment News | Al JazeeraSkip linksSkip to ContentplayLiveSign upShow navigation menuNavigation menuNewsShow more news sectionsAfricaAsiaUS & CanadaLatin AmericaEuropeAsia PacificMiddle EastExplainedOpinionSportVideoMoreShow more sectionsFeaturesEconomyHuman RightsClimate CrisisInvestigationsInteractivesIn PicturesScience & TechnologyPodcastsplayLiveClick here to searchsearchSign upNavigation menucaret-leftTrendingWar on GazaRussia-Ukraine WarDonald TrumpYemen war plans leakcaret-rightNews | EnvironmentDeath toll rises to 28 in weeklong South Korea wildfiresFive out of 11 big fires have been contained after rainfall improves firefighting conditions.Helicopters extinguish wildfires by dumping water on a mountain in Ulsan, 305 kilometres southeast of Seoul, South Korea [File: EPA-EFE]Published On 28 Mar 202528 Mar 2025Wildfires sweeping through South Korea since last Friday have killed at least 28 people, injured dozens more and charred about 48,000 hectares (118,000 acres) of forest, according to local news agency Yonhap.But better visibility and cooler temperatures following overnight rainfall on Thursday have led to improved firefighting conditions against the blazes that were driven by strong winds from central Uiseong county to coastal regions.Recommended Storieslist of 1 itemlist 1 of 1Photos: Wildfires kill 19 and displace thousands in South Koreaend of listAl Jazeera's Jack Barton, reporting from Uiseong, said, "It's too early to call it a turning point, but of the 11 big fires that were raging, five have been completely contained overnight."And while some are still burning intensely, we are seeing good results in places like Uiseong. Fires are down to 5 percent of what they were," he said.Still, about 38,000 residents have so far had to flee affected areas, the government's disaster response agency has said."We plan to mobilise all available resources to extinguish the main flames by the end of the day," said Lim Sang-seop, chief of the Korea Forest Service told Yonhap.AdvertisementThe fires have been fuelled by dry winds and a prolonged drought, according to officials. Wildfires are not uncommon in South Korea during dry spells.In recent years, both average temperatures and extreme weather events have increased in the country, significantly raising the risk and severity of fires.Experts view the increase in wildfires as a sign of the ongoing effects of climate change.Al Jazeera's Barton reported that "many houses and farms across this area [around Uiseong] have been destroyed. Many people, tens of thousands, have been evacuated and remain displaced."South Korea's acting president Han Duck-soo said that 'all efforts will be taken' to help people access financial resources to get their homes rebuilt. He said that money should be limitless," Barton said."Local governments are saying they will try and move them out of the tent evacuation camps as quickly as possible in temporary process. But it will be a long process," he added.An 81-year-old apple farmer walks with sticks over debris past her neighbours' homes, burned by a wildfire two days ago, in Andong on March 27, 2025 [Yasuyoshi Chiba/AFP]Source:Al Jazeera and news agenciesaj-logoaj-logoaj-logoSponsored ContentAdvertisementAboutShow moreAbout UsCode of EthicsTerms and ConditionsEU/EEA Regulatory NoticePrivacy PolicyCookie PolicyCookie PreferencesSitemapWork for usConnectShow

moreContact UsUser Accounts HelpAdvertise with usStay ConnectedNewslettersChannel FinderTV SchedulePodcastsSubmit a TipOur ChannelsShow moreAl Jazeera ArabicAl Jazeera EnglishAl Jazeera Investigative UnitAl Jazeera MubasherAl Jazeera DocumentaryAl Jazeera BalkansAJ+Our NetworkShow moreAl Jazeera Centre for StudiesAl Jazeera Media InstituteLearn ArabicAl Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human RightsAl Jazeera ForumAl Jazeera Hotel PartnersFollow Al Jazeera English:facebooktwitteryoutubeinstagramcolored-outlinesrss© 2025 Al Jazeera Media Network

10. The many ways Israeli settlers steal Palestinian homes

[AFP 20241128 36NF2C8 v2 HighRes TopshotPalestinianIsraelConflict 1741342489] | /wp-content/uploads/2025/03/AFP_20241128_36NF2C8_v2_HighRes_TopshotPalestinianIsraelConflict-1741342489.jpg?resize=770%2C513&quality=80

[AFP 20250324 37ML877 v1 HighRes PalestinianIsraelConflict 1742889695] | /wp-content/uploads/2025/03/AFP_20250324_37ML877_v1_HighRes_PalestinianIsraelConflict-1742889695.jpg?w=770&resize=770%2C513

The many ways Israeli settlers steal Palestinian homes | Israel-Palestine conflict News | Al Jazeera

Skip links Skip to Content playLiveSign up Show navigation menu Navigation menu News Show more news sections Africa Asia US & Canada Latin America Europe Asia Pacific Middle East Explained Opinion Sport Video More Show more sections Features Economy Human Rights Climate Crisis Investigations Interactives In Pictures Science & Technology Podcasts playLive Click here to search search Sign up Navigation menu caret-left Israel-Palestine conflict Live updates Gaza's stolen childhood How is Gaza celebrating Eid? An Israeli bullet took Malak's future He knew journalism meant Israel would kill him caret-right Features | Israel-Palestine conflict The many ways Israeli settlers steal Palestinian homes Palestinian farmers speak with Israeli soldiers after being attacked by Israeli settlers while farming their land in Salem village east of Nablus in the occupied West Bank on November 28, 2024 [Zain Jaafar/AFP] By Mat Nashed Published On 28 Mar 2025 28 Mar 2025 On Monday, Ghassan Abdel Basset and his family left their home in the occupied West Bank to visit a relative. They were going to break their fast together during the holy month of Ramadan. Recommended Stories list of 3 items list 1 of 3 The world must not accept the 'new normal' in Palestine list 2 of 3 Sidi Shayban's Ramadan iftars challenge Israeli restrictions in West Bank list 3 of 3 I felt I would die': Palestinian Oscar winner after Israeli settler attack end of list [Later that evening, their neighbours informed them that Israeli settlers had invaded their home. Ghassan hurried back to confront the settlers, but the Israeli army intervened to block him and his family from getting back to their house. The settlers claimed they bought the home, but the Abdel Basset family never put it up for sale. "The settlers claim they bought the house from someone, but nobody gave this person the legal right to sell our house," Ghassan told Al Jazeera. "God willing, we will follow the legal procedures \[in Israel\], and the law will take its course," he added. An armed Israeli settler talks to another settler and two members of the Palestinian Abdel Basset family, whose home in Hebron city near the Israeli settlement area of Tel Rumeida was taken over by Israeli settlers on March 24, 2025](#) [Hazem Bader/AFP] Accelerated expulsion Israel's occupation of the Palestinian territory is illegal under international law. As an occupier, Israel is not allowed to transfer its citizens into occupied territory or enforce its national laws there. Advertisement However, more than 750,000 Israeli settlers live in illegal settlements in the West Bank, and many have forged property deeds to provide a veneer of legality to confiscate Palestinian homes. This is one of several strategies that state-backed settlers use to uproot Palestinians, according to analysts, Palestinians and local rights groups. Settlers – backed by the Israeli state – also vandalise homes, set up outposts, attack farmers, destroy crops and steal livestock under the supervision of the Israeli army. According to a recent report by Peace Now and Kerem Navot, two Israeli human rights groups, Israeli settlers currently control 14 percent of Palestinian land in the West Bank. About half of this land has been confiscated since Israel's most recent government came to power in December 2022, marking a serious escalation. Since Israel began its genocidal war on Gaza in October 2023, its far- right government has stepped up land annexations and evictions in the West Bank, rights groups, local monitors and analysts told Al Jazeera. “There are a lot of tools settlers use to cause the displacement of Palestinians,” said Diana Mardi, a researcher with Bimkom, an Israeli human rights group. “They tend to use violence to get Palestinians to reach a point where they feel they have to leave their homes,” she told Al Jazeera. Bedouins and farmers at risk Farmers and Bedouin communities are most at risk from attacks and evictions by Israeli settlers. The report by Peace Now and Kerem Navot found that at least 60 percent of Palestinian herder communities have been uprooted from their lands since 2022. Advertisement On top of that, 14 illegal outposts have been erected on land that Palestinian farmers, herders and Bedouins used to live on. The report added that settlers tend to use animal herding to encroach on Palestinian land and intimidate farmers, a technique known as grazing. A Palestinian stands beside a torched car in the aftermath of an attack by suspected Israeli settlers in the West Bank village of Jinsafut on January 21, 2025 [Majdi Mohammed/AP] Leith, a Palestinian farmer who did not disclose his last name for fear of reprisals, said settlers often try to take over farmland in his village east of Ramallah in this way. He added that the settlers often vandalise crops and block Palestinians from tending to their land in his village. After facing constant threats and attacks by settlers, who are often protected by the Israeli army, Palestinians often abandon their livelihoods. “To protect their families, they have to leave the area. Many of them have children that they need to keep safe, but they lose their main source of income [from farming] when they leave,” Mardi explained. “The settlers are trying to take over our land,” Leith said. “When the army is present with armed settlers, that means it’s not easy. It’s not easy for us to resist.” “Animals have more rights than us” United States President Donald Trump’s administration has further emboldened Israel’s settler movement, said Omar Rahman, an expert on Israel-Palestine with the Middle East Council on Global Affairs. Rahman stressed that settlers benefit from a climate of impunity when they attack Palestinians and steal their land, yet Trump has abandoned any pretext of supporting human rights globally or backing aspirations for an independent Palestinian state. Advertisement “The other aspect is that Trump is surrounded by people who are not just backers of Israel but of ‘Greater Israel’. That means they believe the land biblically belongs [exclusively] to Israelis,” Rahman told Al Jazeera. After Trump was inaugurated on January 20, he quickly signed an executive order to lift sanctions on settlers whom the previous administration deemed to be “extremists” and responsible for undermining the two-state solution. The order was issued one day after a temporary ceasefire came into effect in the Gaza Strip to pause what United Nations experts and legal scholars say is a campaign of Israeli genocide against Palestinians. The next day, settler attacks surged across the West Bank. Palestinians expelled from their homes or uprooted from their farms are trickling into nearby villages or relocating to urban centres that are under the ostensible control of the Palestinian Authority, the entity governing major cities in the West Bank and engaged in security cooperation with Israel. Leith said five or six families have moved into his village after settlers expelled them from their farms – all after October 7, 2023, the day the Gaza war began. He promised to never leave his village despite growing fear of settler attacks and despite what he sees as Western apathy towards Palestinians and their plight. “Nobody cares about human rights. Human rights is just one big lie,” he told Al Jazeera. “Animals have more rights than us.” Source: Al Jazeera aaj-logo aaj-logo aaj-logo Sponsored Content Advertisement About Show more About Us Code of Ethics Terms and Conditions EU/EEA Regulatory Notice Privacy Policy Cookie Policy Cookie Preferences Sitemap Work for us Connect Show more Contact Us User Accounts Help Advertise with us Stay Connected Newsletters Channel Finder TV Schedule Podcasts Submit a Tip Our Channels Show more Al Jazeera Arabic Al Jazeera English Al Jazeera Investigative Unit Al Jazeera Mubasher Al Jazeera Documentary Al Jazeera Balkans AJ+ Our Network Show more Al Jazeera Centre for Studies Al Jazeera Media Institute Learn Arabic Al Jazeera Centre for Public Liberties & Human Rights Al Jazeera Forum Al Jazeera Hotel Partners Follow Al

